

Michelle Obama hosts International Jazz Day celebration at the White House

First Lady Michelle Obama and special guest, Jazz legend Herbie Hancock, take part in a jazz workshop for high school students at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House, in Washington D.C., on April 29, 2016.

Michelle Obama delivers remarks at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House in Washington D.C. on April 29, 2016. The first lady welcomed high school students from around the country for a jazz workshop featuring jazz legends Herbie Hancock (2nd-R), Dee Dee Bridgewater (C), Bobby Watson (2nd-L) and Terrence Blanchard. Photo by Kevin Dietsch/UPI

Jazz legend Herbie Hancock attends a jazz workshop for high school students hosted by first lady Michelle Obama at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House, in Washington D.C. on April 29, 2016. Photo by Kevin Dietsch/UPI

Michelle Obama delivers remarks at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House in Washington D.C. on April 29, 2016. The first lady welcomed high school students from around the country for a jazz workshop featuring jazz legends Herbie Hancock (2nd-R), Dee Dee Bridgewater (2nd-L) and Bobby Watson. Photo by Kevin Dietsch/UPI

Michelle Obama delivers remarks at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House in Washington D.C. on April 29, 2016. The first lady welcomed high school students from around the country for a jazz workshop featuring jazz legends Herbie Hancock, Dee Dee Bridgewater, Bobby Watson and Terrence Blanchard. Photo by Kevin Dietsch/UPI

Jazz legend Herbie Hancock delivers remarks at a jazz workshop for high school students hosted by first lady Michelle Obama at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House, in Washington D.C. on April 29, 2016. Photo by Kevin Dietsch/UPI

Jazz legends, from left to right, Terrence Blanchard, Bobby Watson, Dee Dee Bridgewater and Herbie Hancock attend a jazz workshop for high school students hosted by first lady Michelle Obama at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House, in Washington D.C. on April 29, 2016. Photo by Kevin Dietsch/UPI

Michelle Obama delivers remarks at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House in Washington D.C. on April 29, 2016. The first lady welcomed high school students from around the country for a jazz workshop featuring jazz legends Herbie Hancock, Dee Dee Bridgewater, Bobby Watson and Terrence Blanchard. Photo by Kevin Dietsch/UPI

Michelle Obama hugs Jazz legend Herbie Hancock at a jazz workshop for high school students at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House, in Washington D.C. on April 29, 2016. Photo by Kevin Dietsch/UPI

Michelle Obama delivers remarks at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House in Washington D.C. on April 29, 2016. The first lady welcomed high school students from around the country for a jazz workshop featuring jazz legends Herbie Hancock (2nd-R), Dee Dee Bridgewater (C), Bobby Watson (2nd-L) and Terrence Blanchard. Photo by Kevin Dietsch/UPI

Jazz legend Herbie Hancock performs during a jazz workshop for high school students hosted by first lady Michelle Obama at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House, in Washington D.C. on April 29, 2016. Photo by Kevin Dietsch/UPI

Students with the Thelonious Monk Institute of Jazz at UCLA perform at a jazz workshop for high school students hosted by first lady Michelle Obama at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House, in Washington D.C. on April 29, 2016. Photo by Kevin Dietsch/UPI

A student with the Thelonious Monk Institute of Jazz at UCLA perform at a jazz workshop for high school students hosted by first lady Michelle Obama at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House, in Washington D.C. on April 29, 2016. Photo by Kevin Dietsch/UPI

Students with the Thelonious Monk Institute of Jazz at UCLA perform at a jazz workshop for high school students hosted by first lady Michelle Obama at the International Jazz Day celebration at the White House, in Washington D.C. on April 29, 2016. Photo by Kevin Dietsch/UPI