

75 Jazz artistes across the world come together to celebrate International Jazz Day

By - TNN | Updated: Apr 28, 2020, 16:50 IST | f t p

The National Centre for the Performing Arts celebrates jazz around the world by bringing together over 75 artistes across the globe in commemoration of International Jazz Day

Jazz has always been about music promising hope and freedom, an art form which evokes identity and augments the desire to express. And to celebrate the International Jazz Day, (April 30, 2020), the NCPA Mumbai, has brought together over 75 Jazz artistes across the world.

Intimate home-recordings of performances by local and international Jazz legends from around the globe will be broadcasted for three days (April 29 to May 1) on the social media platforms. In light of these trying times, the NCPA joins in the endeavor with this online initiative to bring communities together and pay a touching tribute to Jazz through special online video performances by these artists.

The artistes who have come together for this global celebration include maestros from India, the United States of America, Italy, Japan, Israel, Netherlands, Germany, London and Singapore amongst other countries.

Performances by these artistes will be broadcasted at multiple intervals during the three days, taking into account all cities, countries and time zones in the hopes of celebrating International Jazz Day together around the world.

The celebration will also include a special feature of saxophonist and vocalist, Camille Thurman with the Darrell Green Trio that will go live as a part of the NCPA at home on YouTube on the D-day at 6pm.

Their videos that have been collated by the centre and feature artists from the largest jazz hubs from all around the world expressing themselves from the comforts of their homes in this celebration of hope.